Background and methodology of the research

Background of the research

- The European Union's adoption of General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) has come into effect from May 2018. This legislation directly impacts all companies based in, or doing business with companies/individuals based in the European Economic Area (EEA), and has put pressure on organizations to comply with its stipulated requirements for data (both steady state and in-transit)
- Service providers are investing in developing capabilities in GDPR-related services not only to enable compliance for their clients but also for themselves. They are investing in the development of proprietary solutions, expansion of their partner ecosystem, and nurturing of their workforce to be GDPR-ready
- In this research, we present the assessment and detailed profiles of eight IT service providers featured on the GDPR services PEAK Matrix™. Each service provider profile presents a comprehensive picture of its service suite, scale of operations, and domain investments. The assessment is based on Everest Group's annual RFI process for the calendar year 2017, interactions with leading GDPR service providers, client reference checks, and an analysis of the GDPR services market

Scope of this report

Strengths

- Service provider 1 structured methodology for GDPR implementation, combined with its broad service catalog, has resonated well with clients
- Its investments in talent development, domain understanding, and thought leadership have provided it credibility in the market

Areas of improvement

- Service provider 1 would benefit from expanding its partner ecosystem to take a holistic proposition to its clients beyond its core capabilities
- It should also aggressively market its marquee success stories in the market and actively target European customers to expand its GDPR presence in the region

Additional Application Services research references

The following documents are recommended for additional insight on the topic covered in this report. The recommended documents either provide additional details on the topic or complementary content that may be of interest

1. EU GDPR: Is There a Silver Lining to the Disruption?(EGR-2018-32-V-2347); 2017. This viewpoint aims to look beyond the short-term impact (tactical changes to achieve GDPR compliance) at the long-term and far-reaching strategic impact on the key components of global services delivery strategies: Process, Sourcing models, Service providers, Locations, Governance, and Contracting; and try to assess whether the disruption caused by the regulation has a silver lining (e.g., opportunities for transformation and push towards consolidation).
2. IT Security Services – Market Trends and PEAK Matrix™ Assessment: “Security – The Biggest Digital Insecurity”(EGR-2017-4-R-2310); 2017. The rapid digitalization has made the enterprise IT security landscape highly complex and challenging to handle, as CISOs look to guard their enterprise environments against burgeoning internal and external threats. The proliferation in digital touch-points, driven by increasing adoption of next-generation technologies / delivery models such as cloud, IOT, mobility, and social media, has rendered the existing traditional enterprise security and risk mitigation strategies obsolete. Enterprises are now required to take a more intelligence-driven and holistic security approach to deal with this rapidly changing threat landscape. Service providers need to make continuous investments in delivering next-generation security services that support the digitalization movement of enterprises.
