Background of the research

Adapting to an experience-first mindset is increasingly becoming inevitable for enterprises across the globe. To gain sustainable competitive dominance, brands need to make sure that this definition of experience design is not just limited to customers. Today's customer is inclined toward brands that operationalize the experience-first approach across their employees, partners, and the environment. Therefore, to remain relevant in the long run, brands need to broaden their horizon for holistic experience design implementation. There are several technology vendors that enable brands in achieving their experience design goals but Adobe, with its endless offerings across Creative, Experience, and Document Cloud, is a clear leader in this space. In order to assess the overall experience design capabilities of service providers, we have delivered an in-depth analysis of their Adobe services capabilities across the value chain of consult, implement, run and operate, and support services.

In this research, we present an assessment of 24 service providers featured on the Adobe Services PEAK Matrix®, a comprehensive matrix that evaluates and categorizes service providers in terms of their capabilities.

The assessment is based on Everest Group's annual Request for Information (RFI) process for the calendar year 2022, interactions with leading Adobe services providers, client reference checks, and an ongoing analysis of the Adobe services market.
